Applications are invited for an assistant tenure-track faculty position in Special Education to begin in August 2012 within the School of Education at Indiana University Northwest. Required qualifications include a Ph.D. or Ed.D. in special education or a related area with specialization in Mild Disabilities, equivalent of 3 years of P-12 teaching experience in special education in the United States, and an active research agenda related to educating students with disabilities. The successful candidate will also have strengths in evidence-based teaching methods and IEP development, a commitment to inclusion, strong interpersonal skills, and the ability to work with diverse student populations. Also required are excellent oral and written communication skills and a commitment to collaboration and collegiality. Preferred qualifications include strengths in special education approaches to reading instruction, foundations of special education, legal and/or administration of special education, university teaching experience, familiarity with NCATE, and a sense of humor. Candidates who are ABD and will complete degree requirements by August 1, 2012 will be considered.

The position requires teaching pre-service and Master’s level courses in special education, supervision of field experiences (including electronic supervision), working with public school partners to build mutually beneficial programs for field and clinical experiences, serving on various school and campus committees, and service to the community.

To apply, submit via email electronic copies of letter of intent, vita, transcripts, and three letters of reference with contact information to Dr. Glenn P. Lauzon, Search Committee Chair, glauzon@iun.edu.

Review of applications will begin immediately; the position will remain open until filled. For more information about the School of Education, refer to the web page at: www.iun.edu/~edu
