

Plan: Sociology BA TSAP

School: College of Arts and Sciences

Description: The Bachelor of Arts in Sociology degree program explores the systematic study of society from the micro-level (the individual in society) to the macro-level (the study of institutions). Sociology majors are also encouraged to draw upon the resources of other departments in the social and behavioral sciences, the physical/natural sciences, and the humanities. Sociology graduates are well prepared for working in social agencies and programs related to social services such as child welfare, family counseling, community development, mental hospitals, drug treatment, and education.
