In cases where the Chancellor feels the need for faculty input in a formal way in cases involving alleged misconduct by a faculty member, the members of the previous year's Board of Review will be used to form an ad hoc committee.

If a Board member is unavailable, unwilling to serve, or feels that he/she may have conflict of interest, the remainder of the Board will constitute the committee. The minimum committee size will be three.

If fewer than three individuals are able to serve on the committee, then the Chancellor should request that the entire Board from two years previous be added to the committee. At this point, if three individuals are unavailable, than the Chancellor goes back three years and this process continues until three individuals can be located.
