

I felt a sense of support from the beginning, and that was important to me because I had interacted with a couple of the other colleges in the area and didn't feel like I was getting that same level of response and support.

So that was important to me.

So far the feedback we've received has been excellent, for example, we even have one student who did a master's degree elsewhere and then came to us, and the feedback I really value that from that student what has actually been that the training he's received here was better than the training he received elsewhere.

One of the, one of those things that I was really excited about in this program is that you get out in the field almost right away.

For our students, just across the board though, as they've been moving out and starting to do clinical placements, they've been saying wow you know a lot of the stuff you were talking about in the classes, I'm seeing now how it plays out in the clinical sites.
